

LETTERS TO THE STAR

Salutes CIA

It is encouraging to read that a powerful American investigative agency, the CIA, has presented to the public results of its findings in Cuba (The Star, August 21). By announcing the name of Soviet agent Vadim Kotochergin and describing Kremlin tactics in Communist subversion, the Soviet aim—worldwide communism—will become clarified in the mind and heart of every sound American.

The wide-awake American Legion's National Security Commission is to be congratulated in using speakers of Gen. C. P. Cabell's caliber.

It is also a novel experience to find a leading newspaper, The Evening Star, printing factual news covering reports on the danger of Communist subversion and aims. Everything Russian has been given a favorable slant by the American press for too long and this factual presentation of the CIA report is to be commended.

Surely I do not need to enumerate the Fuchs, Hisses, and Whites, our sheep-like attitude when the Kremlin masterminds world affairs. With a potential Tibet brewing in Cuba or another "peaceful" occupation in Latin America, we need more factual information from the CIA and responsible news sources.
